Home to a world-class research university, visionary entrepreneurs, global industry leaders, major federal research institutions, and the nation's most highly educated population, Boulder is widely recognized as a center of innovation. Nestled at the base of the Rocky Mountains, the city is surrounded by the scenic beauty and recreational opportunities afforded by over 45,000 acres of open space and 150 miles of biking and hiking trails. Boulder offers an impressive choice of art, cultural, dining, entertainment and shopping options, as well as excellent public schools, high-quality healthcare, and a commitment to progressive environmental and social values.

The city of Boulder is the largest municipality in Boulder County, part of the seven-county Denver metro area and the only county in the Boulder MSA (metropolitan statistical area). Only 30 minutes from downtown Denver and 45 minutes from one of the nation's largest international airports, Boulder offers the advantages of a small city with big-city convenience and amenities. Its location in the Mountain Time Zone provides same-day telephone access to major markets throughout the world.

Boulder has a vibrant economy representing a diverse array of industries, including aerospace, bioscience, cleantech, IT/software, natural products, outdoor recreation, and tourism. While small businesses continue to represent the majority of employers in Boulder, corporations such as Ball Aerospace, Google, IBM, Lockheed Martin, Medtronic/Covidien, Micro Motion, Northrop Grumman, Ricoh, Qualcomm and others employ thousands locally. The city's world-class research institutions are another key economic driver, including the University of Colorado Boulder and more than a dozen federal research laboratories including the University Corporation for Atmospheric Research (UCAR), the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), and the National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST).

Population & Growth

In 2013, the city's total population was approximately 103,163, reflecting an annual growth rate of 1.3%. CU-Boulder students (including undergraduate and graduate students) make up approximately 31% of the city of Boulder's population. This is reflected in the city's demographic data. More than half of residents rent (52.4%) and 75% of residents have completed a bachelor's degree or higher. The student population also elevates the percentage of city residents who live below an annual income of $25,000; the percentage was nearly 25% in 2013.

Demographic Characteristics

The following demographic characteristics of city of Boulder residents were obtained from the US Census Bureau 2013 American Community Survey (ACS) released in September 2014. This survey includes population in group quarters, such as college dorms.

Age

The median age of city of Boulder residents is 27.7, unchanged from the previous year. This compares to the national median of 37.5 years. Approximately 30.1% of the adult population in Boulder is in the 18 to 24 age category. This is roughly three times the percentage for the state and national population (9.7% and 10.0%, respectively), highlighting the effect of the university on city demographics.

Education

The Boulder Metropolitan Statistical Area (MSA) has the most highly educated workforce in the United States, with 57% of all adults 25 and older having earned a bachelor's or higher compared to the national average of 29%.

Occupation and Industry

Most residents of the city of Boulder continue to work in white collar positions; however, this figure declined slightly year-over-year. In 2013, approximately 53.8% of the city's civilian labor force was employed in managerial, professional or related occupations. This compares to 40.1% for the rest of Colorado and 36.3% of the nation's workers.

The Educational and Health Services and the Professional and Technical Services industries employ nearly half of the city's population (46.4%).

Income

The university's presence in the Boulder economy is reflected in the large differential between the city's median household income and median family income compared to Colorado and the United States.

Annual Income	City of Boulder	Boulder County	Colorado	U.S.
Median Household	$56,312	$67,956	$58,433	$53,046
Median Family	$104,358	$92,667	$72,687	$64,719
Per Capita Income	$37,286	$38,011	$31,109	$28,155

US Census, 2013 American Community Survey

Educational attainment by city residents helps elevate average incomes among the local non-student population. More than one-third of city residents have an income above $100,000 compared to 34% for the county, 26% for the state, and 23% for the nation. On the other hand, the student population of Boulder city increases the percentage of households with incomes near the poverty line.

Housing

The city of Boulder continues to report higher than average home values, with the median home price at $500,700 in 2013. This compares to $349,100 for the county and $173,900 for the nation. The city’s idyllic location at the base of the Rocky Mountains, along with the presence of the university and research facilities, contributes to this large differential.

The 2013 American Community Survey shows that 96.0% of the city’s housing units are occupied, compared to 89.1% of the state’s housing units. Owner-occupied housing makes up 47.6% of occupied housing in the city while renter-occupied housing represents 53.2% of occupied housing units. The city’s median gross rent was reported at $1,213 per month, marking a 2.0% increase over the September 2012 figure.

Now more than half of the city’s residents have moved into their current residence in 2010 or later (54.0%), a figure that remains significantly higher than the national average.

Tourism

Boulder is a popular destination for local and out-of-state visitors, and tourism is a significant contributor to the Boulder economy. According to the Boulder Convention and Visitors Bureau 2013 Economic Impact of Tourism, the estimated number of jobs in the City of Boulder attributable to tourism is 7,533, including 6,241 jobs directly tied to the tourism industry. Estimated visitor nights in 2013 totaled 2,820,827 in Boulder and total visitor expenditures reached $375.8 million. The total economic impact of tourism in Boulder (direct economic impact plus secondary impact) was $419,111,633.

Tourism in Boulder is supported by the presence of the University of Colorado as well as the city's surroundings and amenities. The area offers scenic beauty, great weather, and abundant recreational opportunities. Boulder is surrounded by over 45,000 acres of open space and has over 150 miles of public hiking and biking trails including the Boulder Creek Path, a trail featuring pedestrian and bicycle lanes that runs through the middle of town. Boulder Canyon is only a 10-minute drive from downtown Boulder; Eldora Mountain Resort, Eldorado Canyon State Park, and Rocky Mountain National Park are less than an hour away. Each year, the city hosts one of the nation’s largest 10k races, the Bolder Boulder. In 2012 Boulder hosted and again in 2014 hosted a stage of the USA Pro Cycling Challenge and hosted the 2014 USA Cycling Cyclo-Cross National Championships.

Boulder offers an impressive variety of art, cultural, and entertainment choices that set it apart from most cities its size. Boulder has more than 30 art galleries and has been recognized as one of the nation’s top cities for art. Boulder is home to five local museums, 32 movie and stage theaters, a resident symphony, and offers a notable number and variety of cultural events. The city’s dining and craft brewing scenes have exploded and Boulder is now a nationally recognized dining destination. Boulder’s commitment to supporting small, unique merchants as well as national retailers has helped create an appealing array of shopping choices.

Hotel occupancy rates, average daily room rates, and average revenue per available room, as well as sales tax receipts for select categories and shopping areas provide further insight into the city’s tourism activity.

Average hotel occupancy rates in the city have been improving and remain consistently higher than state and national averages for cities with similar characteristics.

Average daily rates in the city are lower than the Colorado non-ski average and higher than the national average for cities with similar characteristics to Boulder.

The average revenue per available room (RevPAR) in the city is higher than the Colorado average (non- ski) and the national average for cities with similar characteristics to Boulder.

Accommodations taxes, admissions taxes, and sales taxes indicate robust tourism activity in the city of Boulder.

Sustain Boulder's economic vitality through direct support of primary businesses.

The BEC helps lead the community in creating an economic vision and strategy emphasizing existing business retention and expansion. Boulder Economic Council members are uniquely positioned to help lead major economic initiatives that shape Boulder's future by virtue of their individual standings in the community, knowledge of the market, familiarity with available resources and the collaborative relationships they have established. Council members and staff work to promote Boulder's economic vitality through work with both emerging and established enterprises.

Boulder Economic Council activities include working to retain Boulder's home-grown businesses that have helped to create the character of our community; providing information and support for local businesses and companies interested in Boulder; supporting organizations that provide entrepreneurs with training, networking, mentoring, and access to funding sources; creating a unified voice for a strong local economy through private/public partnerships; and participating in regional and statewide economic initiatives.
